happens is this. From the panel of three persons the Chancellor shall elect the Vice-Chancellor. Sir, supposing the Chief Minister has a particular person in his view, without going to the Senate or Syndicate, the Chief Minister can easily put his man in the panel. He can persuade the Governor to put one of his men into the panel of three persons. For instance, there is 'A'. He is Chancellor's man. He is included in the panel of three persons. Now let us presume that the Senate and Syndicate have sent two different names. 'A' whi is recommended by the Chancellor will be appointed as Vice-Chancellor. It is very easy to send three names, out of which, one man, who has already received the secret or tacit approval of the Chancellor through the Chief Minister will be appointed. In other words, the Chancellor will have the name of the Vice-Chancellor. It is so easy for the Chancellor to elect and select a person of the Chief Minister's choice out of the three persons. Therefore, Clause 11 affects the autonomy of the University itself. Of course we may have a good Chief Minister to-day. If we come across a Chief Minister, who is partial, that will affect the autonomy of the University.

With regard to 'visitation' it has been stated that in cases where the Senate or the Syndicate does not within a reasonable time take action to the satisfaction of the Government, the Government may, after considering any explanation furnished on representation made by the Senate or the Syndicate, issue such directons as they may think fit and the Senate and the Syndicate shall comply with such directions.

In other words, this clause of visitation makes it possible for the Government to send one of his representatives and completely destroy the autonomy of the University. I am afraid, if we go through the Bill more and more, we find there are provisions which destroy the autonomy of the University. I hope the Chief Minister will reconsider this Bill and send it back to the lower House.

5-40 p.m. DEPUTY CHAIRMAN: The House will now adjourn and meet again at 3 p.m. to-morrow.

The House then adjourned.
